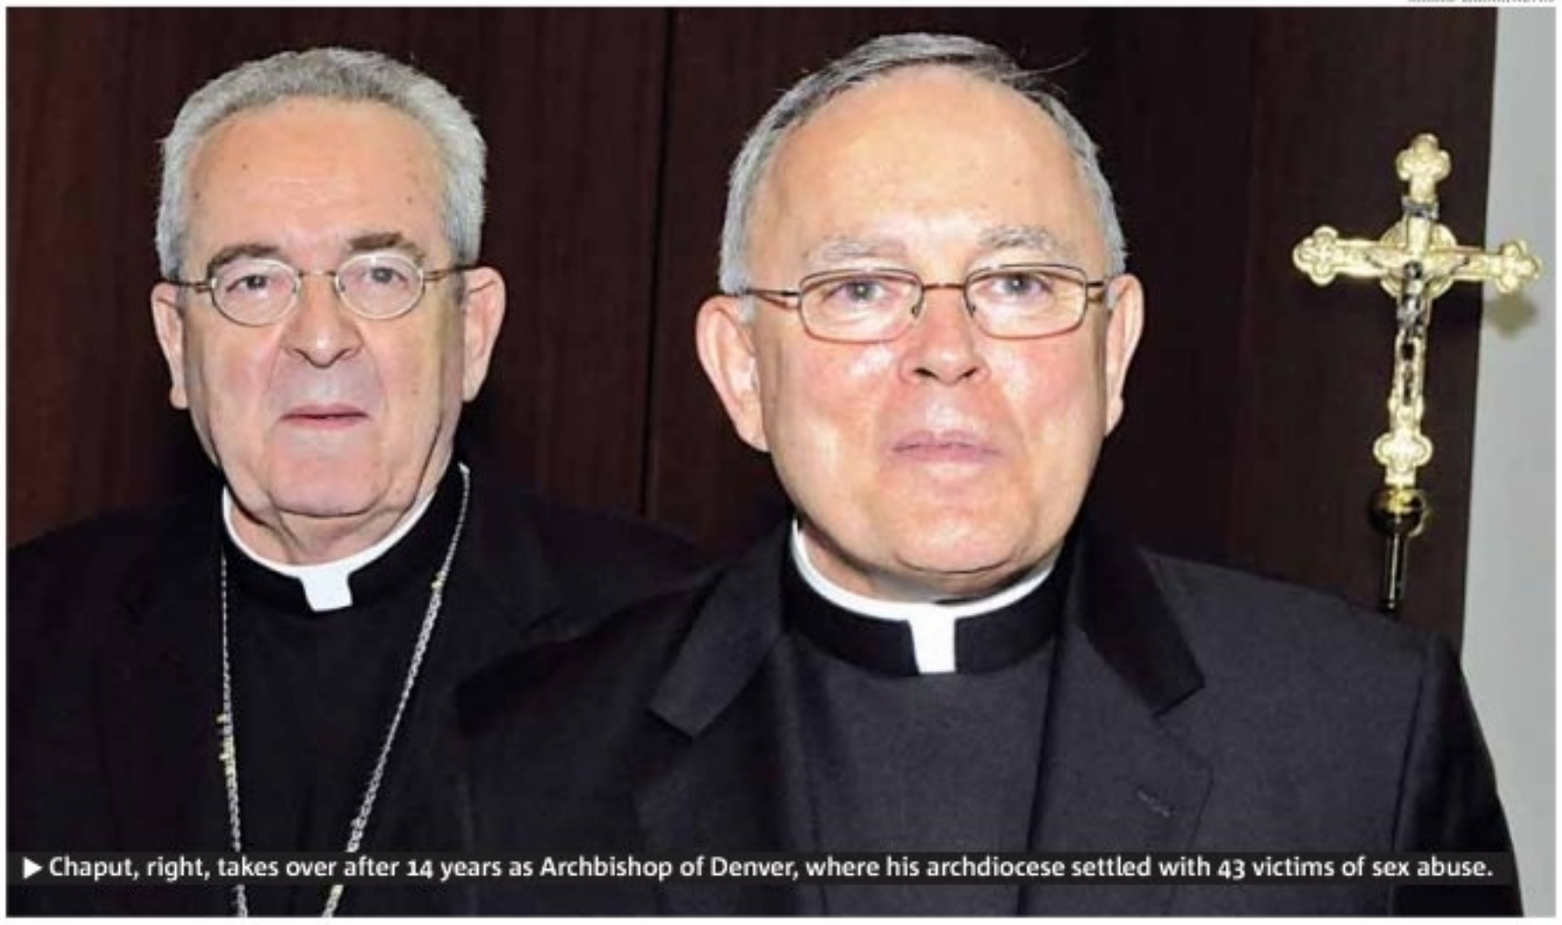
Victims' advocates say Chaput has lots to prove in how he handles still unfolding sex abuse scandal in Philly ◗ Settled with 43 victims in Denver

RIKARD LARMA/METRO



▶ Chaput, right, takes over after 14 years as Archbishop of Denver, where his archdiocese settled with 43 victims of sex abuse.

Cardinal Justin Rigali announced his retirement yesterday in an oddly cheerful sendoff. Though he gave age as the official reason for his departure, the beleaguered archdiocese's ongoing sex abuse scandal will likely haunt his legacy.

Successor, Denver Archbishop Charles Chaput, has also received criticism for his handling widespread abuse cases.

"He was not in any way helpful to the survivor community," said Barbara Doris of Survivors Network of Those Abused by Priests, Midwest. "He fought the reform of the statue of limitations, he bullied survivors into mediation to protect his secrets and he kept documents from being released."

"If I have offended anyone in any way, I am deeply sorry. I apologize for any weaknesses on my part in representing Christ and his Church worthily and effectively."
RIGALI

In May, the very investigator Rigali appointed to chair an archdiocese internal investigative panel, attorney Ana Maria Cantazaro wrote in her initial report that he "failed miserably at being open and transparent" regarding the allegations.

"We think that the fact that it was accepted now is closely related to the grand jury reports and the fact that he clearly was not doing his due diligence in reporting abusive priests," said Karen Polesir, Pa. chapter director of SNAP.

ALEX WIGGLESWORTH
awigglesworth@metro.us

Scandals

Denver and Philadelphia have both been rocked by abuse claims.

- Denver
  Allegations surfaced: 2005-2008
  Number of victims: 43 have settled for $8.2 million
  Priests removed: 1 in 2010. Most abuse allegations reportedly involve three deceased clergymen
- Philadelphia
  Allegations surfaced: 2005-2011
  Number of victims: 50 listed in grand jury report
  Priests removed: 21 so far, four have been charged

True reform still needed

Advocates say Chaput's appointment doesn't alleviate the archdiocese's overarching problem: restoring confidence through real reform.

"I don't think that [the archdiocese] can ever heal until they actually do something to make significant changes," Doris said. "Parents are very concerned about the safety of their children and right now they have absolutely no reason to believe that anything has changed or that their children are safe." METRO/AW

Choker suspect identified

Police have identified the at-large suspect in a series of violent robberies in the last month that all occurred in Society Hill. Willie Wyche, 39, allegedly has been identified in an attack near Seventh and Lombard streets on July 10 and possibly four other attacks.

Woman settles with NYPD

A South Philadelphia woman has a valuable souvenir from New York City – a $125,000 settlement with the city after being refused insulin during an October arrest for smoking a joint.

Jaime Rutkowski, 30, a Type-1 diabetic, was at a restaurant on the Lower East Side when she and a friend were arrested by plainclothes officers. According to documents filed in the case, Rutkowski was denied access to her confiscated glucose kit and insulin despite repeated requests until her sugar level was more than three times a normal level. Blatstein faces sign fight near Delaware Riverfront

Developer wants to wrap vacant building with advertising to raise cash
Zoning laws, some neighbors present challenge Hearing postponed

▶ Already an eyesore.

A developer's proposal to put signs on a building along Interstate 95 in Pennsport is challenging the city's zoning laws for the Delaware River waterfront and drawing the ire of some community members.

Bart Blatstein, the developer behind the Piazza at Schmidt's and the Pier 70 Shopping Center on Christopher Columbus Boulevard, proposes wrapping three non-accessory signs around a building on Columbus Boulevard that has been vacant for more than a decade. The project needs a zoning variance, partly because of its proximity to homes, but is also prohibited under a 2009 law that prevents haphazard zoning along the up-and-coming waterfront.

Time out

A hearing before the city's Zoning Board of Adjustment last week was postponed to give Blatstein more time to talk with neighbors. No new date has been scheduled.

Pennsport Civic Association supports the signs, but the Society Created to Reduce Urban Blight and other neighbors said the project would be hideous.

"If you plaster the place with signs it's sort of dehumanizing," said Steve Weixler of the Central Delaware Advocacy Group.

Blatstein argues that the signs would be temporary and help generate money to redevelop the building.

"Part of the reason why [it is] undeveloped is because it was built as an industrial building. Industrial is no longer relevant there," said Robert Patterson, the lawyer representing the project, noting that the building is zoned as commercial. "At some point, Bart can see what the appropriate use will be for the building."

News in brief

▶ McDonald: Report facts.

Nutter quells viral error

CITY HALL. Things can get blown out of proportion on the Internet and the Nutter administration had to do some extensive clarifying yesterday morning after an evidently erroneous report on CBSPhilly.com said the city would start issuing tickets for pedestrians who text while walking.

Mayor Michael Nutter went to Twitter. "It is NOT illegal to text and walk in Philly," he posted. "You will NOT be fined."

The best rebuke came from Nutter's spokesman Mark McDonald to Gawker, which also reported the erroneous story on its popular site: "Your whack job reporter can spin his puerile fantasies about doing violence to people he does not like, but he first needs to get his facts straight. Indeed, Max might want to do a little READING before he writes." METRO

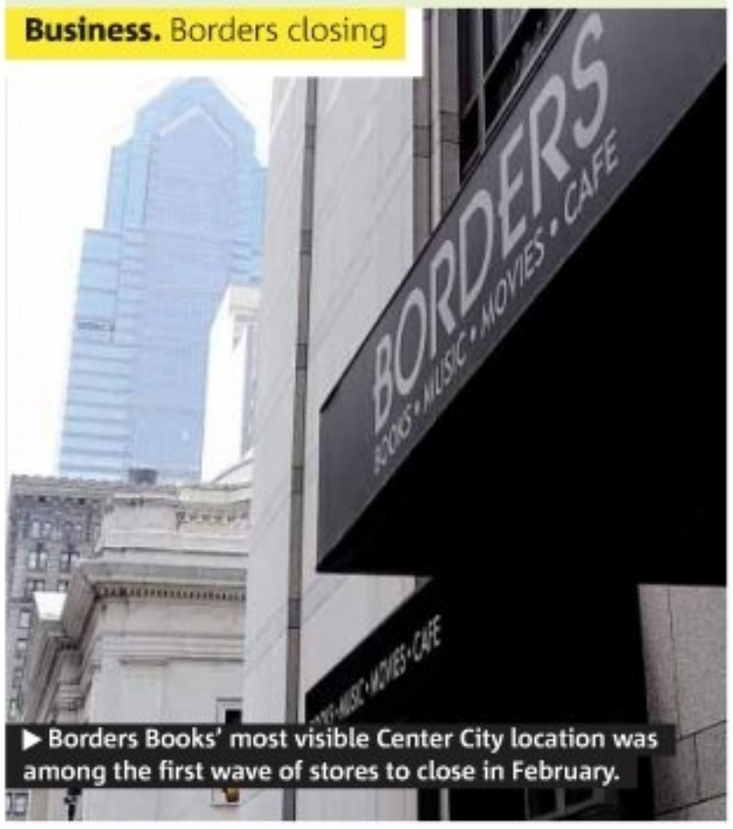
Business. Borders closing



▶ Borders Books' most visible Center City location was among the first wave of stores to close in February.

Book closes on Borders

After 40 years of business, Borders Books announced yesterday that it will sell the assets of its remaining 399 stores across the country, including 15 in the Philadelphia region. Those will likely close in the coming months, by the end of August or in early September, according to reports.

Lizz Winstead, a co-creator of the "The Daily Show", is bringing her "Planned Parenthood, I Am Here For You!" comedy tour to Philadelphia tonight.

Winstead is traveling the East Coast and Midwest in her car to raise money for the besieged womens clinic.

"I and every woman in my circle have used the services of Planned Parenthood. I bet the protesters outside my performances also know someone that has used Planned Parenthood," Winstead said. "Ninety-seven percent of what Planned Parenthood does is to keep women healthy at an affordable price."

Her stand-up routine is 75 minutes of topical political satire, which is tweaked nightly depending on the day's events. It ends with her reading an essay about her teenage pregnancy.

Winstead is anticipating protesters. "Conservatives, instead of worrying about jobs and the economy, are blasting Planned Parenthood," she said. "Some protesters come with fetuses."

Less money for students in economy

Almost two-thirds of U.S. shoppers plan to spend the same or less this back-to-school season as last year, a survey showed, in an early sign that retailers may not obtain a huge boost from the second-biggest selling season of the year.

About 65 percent of parents surveyed by America's Research Group said they did not plan to spend more during the key season that typically runs from late July into early September as students gear up for the upcoming school year.

While many retailers have already started advertising weeks ahead of school year's start, about 43 percent of parents said they plan to shop only a week or two before schools open, hoping to find better deals later in the season. Less than 7 percent of parents plan to shop two months before school.

Consumer spending accounts for almost 70 percent of the economy. REUTERS

Report: 30 percent in 12 states obese

WASHINGTON. At least 30 percent of people in 12 states were obese in 2010 — an increase of three states from a year earlier, according to the U.S. Centers for Disease Control and Prevention.

No state reported that less than 20 percent of adults were obese, the Atlanta-based agency said yesterday in a statement. That means no state met the national Healthy People 2010 goal to lower the prevalence to 15 percent.

29.4% The South had the highest rate of obesity, with 29.4 percent; the West had the lowest, at 24.1 percent.

Medicare and Medicaid each spend more than 20 percent of their budgets to treat illnesses related to avoidable health risks like obesity, according to the Trust for America's Health and the Robert Wood Johnson Foundation. BLOOMBERG

New homes shooting up

WASHINGTON. Groundbreaking for homes scaled a six-month high in June, partly reflecting growing demand for rental apartments, a government report showed yesterday.

The Commerce Department said housing starts increased 14.6 percent to a seasonally adjusted annual rate of 629,000 units, the highest level since January, as groundbreaking for multi-family units soared 30.4 percent. REUTERS

Mogul plays up humility, regret

Rupert Murdoch called it the most humble day of his life, and he can rarely have looked as ill at ease as he did during yesterday's parliamentary hearing.

The 80-year-old press baron spent much of the three-hour hearing with his head bowed, at times staring at the back of his hands, and rarely showed the passion and aggression on which he built his business over six decades.

He answered many questions in monosyllables and frequently left long pauses before uttering short replies, apologizing repeatedly for the hacking by his now defunct News of the World newspaper but shedding little light on what went on.

"This is the most humble day of my life," he said.

REUTERS

Murdoch attacked during testimony

Press baron apologizes for phone hacking scandal but rejects notion of personal responsibility Says hearing was 'most humble day' of his life

Rupert Murdoch, unperturbed by a shaving cream pie attack in Britain's Parliament, apologized yesterday for the phone hacking scandal that has engulfed his empire but said he would not resign as he had himself been let down by others.

Murdoch, at times appearing all of his 80 years as he took lengthy pauses before answering questions alongside his 38-year-old son, said he had been ashamed by the allegations and won some sympathy for his apparent remorse.

"Frankly, I'm the best person to clean this up."

RUPERT MURDOCH, WHEN ASKED WHY HE HAD NOT RESIGNED

POST YOUR COMMENTS: WWW.METRO.US/MURDOCH

In a hotly anticipated hearing, the most dramatic moment came after two and half hours when a man appeared to rise from the public area of the committee room and tried to hit the elder Murdoch with a dish of shaving cream.

As James Murdoch rose and police moved in, watched live by millions on television, Rupert Murdoch's 42-year-old wife Wendi Deng, who had been sitting right behind her husband, leapt forward to slap the man. He was hauled away and the session suspended.

Ten minutes later, the session resumed with an apology from the chairman and a jacketless Rupert Murdoch who continued to answer questions calmly.

At the start of proceedings, the elder Murdoch had rejected personal responsibility for the phone-hacking and corruption scandal but, with his son, said the company was deeply sorry and intended to resolve the issue as quickly as possible.

REUTERS

Brooks' testimony

Rebekah Brooks, the former News of the World editor at the time some of the alleged hacking occurred, apologized for the scandal and denied knowing the private investigators at the heart of the allegations. She also dismissed suggestions she had ever made or sanctioned payments to the police.

Metro's Monica Weymouth shares her take on the world of gossip @monicaatmetro monica.weymouth@metro.us

– Dorothy Robinson will return tomorrow.

Breaking news: J. Lo is sexy

▶ Is it just us, or was this pretty memorable?

ALL PHOTOS GETTY IMAGES

Even stranger than the fact that Jennifer Lopez and Marc Anthony got married is this little bit of gossip about one of the reasons they're splitting up: He thought J. Lo was too sexy.

It seems that, in the process of begging for the title of Mr. Jennifer Lopez, Anthony forgot he was marrying the woman who wore That Dress. "He would make her feel terrible about herself if she wanted to wear something sexy," a source tells UsMagazine.com. "He likes her to dress in a demure, 'wife' style. He hated the fact that she was a sex symbol."

How many marriages go downhill because the mother of 3-year-old twins is too sexy? Prepare yourselves: J-to-the-L-O is going to be owning this irreconcilable difference on every red carpet that'll have her.

Lady Gaga does it for the children

Let it never be said that Lady Gaga didn't put on a show. When she stopped by Howard Stern's radio show yesterday, she denied lip syncing live: "You think I'm going to ask these sweet 14-year-olds to ask their parents to buy a $100 ticket then run around in latex and lip sync? No way."

Not that she's taking any cheap shots at her peers who famously do. When asked how she felt about writing songs that made other people famous before she became a household name/pest, she played nice. "Fricking Britney Spears sang my record. I was doing backflips and ordering drinks when I heard she was going to be recording my song."

Gaga at SiriusXM on Monday

Angie is in charge

Don't expect Angelina Jolie to be wearing a sensible dress in the kitchen anytime soon. In the Pitt-Jolie house, she's in charge, according to E! Online. "She rules him," says an anonymous "friend" of Brad to the site. "You can never put anything past that Angie, as she's the one calling the shots." Those are shots we're kind of afraid to even write about.

Talking points

Lovato's new love interest?

Demi Lovato and Ryan Phillippe have reportedly been quietly seeing each other over the last few months, but the actor's recent drama with rumored baby mama Alexis Knapp has cooled things off between them, according E! Online. A source says that Lovato and Phillippe's relationship "was really hot and heavy for a while," but the Disney star didn't know Phillippe was going to be a father with Knapp's baby "until it basically happened. It kind of threw her for a loop." The pair have been on a break since Knapp gave birth two weeks ago, the source says.

Perks of being a Beckham

Having David Beckham as a dad certainly has its benefits, as Brooklyn, Romeo and Cruz Beckham are set to enjoy a private concert by their favorite singer, Justin Bieber, according to Hollyscoop. "I've agreed to give the boys a private concert at their house — if David gives me some private soccer lessons," Bieber says. "He told me how happy it would make the boys, so I had to say yes." The pop star could also include girlfriend Selena Gomez in the gig, he admits: "Maybe now [that] they have a girl, Selena will have to come too, and dedicate a song to Harper."

▶ Talk about a good seat.

▶ Jim Cummings might sound familiar to you.

Meet Winnie the Pooh and Tigger, too

Jim Cummings has been giving our favorite stuffed animals their voices since the mid-'80s And then there's his gig as the 'Anti Pooh'

Giving a voice to the sweetest stuffed bear in the Hundred Acre Wood is an honor that only three men have had since Winnie the Pooh first became animated by Disney in the 1960s. Jim Cummings is the most recent to hold the title, and has voiced Pooh — and Tigger, too! — since the '80s. Metro caught up with the voice actor (who also does the Tasmanian Devil) to hear what he thinks of Pooh's latest full-length film, in theaters now.

How did you replicate a voice developed by Sterling Holloway?

Whenever a character needs to be replaced, you have to remember that everyone is so used to the sound of the voice, the tenor, the quality. Job one right off the bat, make sure you sound like him, then remain true to the character. I always say that I am a torchbearer for the next generation.

What's Winnie the Pooh's dialect? Is he from the South?

I think maybe he had a little bit. I think that Sterling Holloway had a little bit. I heard people say that they heard a little bit of a British accent, too.

Are there any particular kinds of voices that are harder to do?

I probably joke that that I am Winnie the Pooh and the Anti Pooh. What I mean by Anti Pooh is the Tasmanian Devil, that's me too. Taz is a bit tougher on the pipes, so I would always ask the producers, "Can we do Taz on Friday afternoon, that way I got the weekend to heal?"

Do you identify more with Pooh or with Tigger? Who do you feel most like?

I'll go with Tigger, personality-wise, because I'm more outgoing, more bouncy. Pooh is very laid-back, but I love them both — they are so different.

A sneak peek at new season of 'Damages'

Drama moves to DirecTV for fourth season That means there will be cussing in Patty Hewes' office

GETTY IMAGES

FOR THE COMPLETE PROFILE, VISIT WWW.METRO.US/TV

Top attorney Patty Hewes (Glenn Close) and her protegee Ellen Parsons (Rose Byrne) are back for Season 4 of "Damages," airing Wednesdays at 10 p.m. on DirecTV. Joining the power duo this season, which focuses on the ethics of private military companies, are John Goodman, Dylan Baker and Chris Messina.

"[Co-producers] Dan [Zelman], Glenn [Kessler] and I feel very lucky that each season — and this season is absolutely no exception — we've been joined by amazing actors who have wanted to jump off the edge of the cliff with us," co-creator Todd A. Kessler remarks. "This season in particular was one where there was a mystery at the center of it and Dylan, John and Chris were all game for that exploration."

Season 4 also marks the return of Byrnes' character to Patty's firm, Hewes & Associates; Close was quick to offer praise for the move.

"I really missed it when Rosie was at the DA's office," Close says. "We missed her on the set."

Canceled by FX, the show found a new home on DirecTV and can thus make use of profanity and some extra violence that may not have been appropriate for FX. "Damages" is also a huge hit internationally, and Close was able to speculate as to why that may be.

"I'm just a believer in good writing," she says. "We don't have the largest audience on television, but I've always been very impressed with how smart they are, and I think that's a huge compliment."

Airing out William Shakespeare

This year, Shakespeare in Clark Park takes on 'Much Ado About Nothing' Co-founder Marla Burkholder on bringing a new perspective to the Bard with the beloved summer series

If you go

'Much Ado About Nothing'

Tonight through Sunday
7 p.m., free
43rd St. and Chester Ave.
www.shakespeareinclarkpark.org

Marla Burkholder is a co-founder of Shakespeare in Clark Park, which means — as is the case with so many young non-profits — she wears about 15 hats.

An annual production, SCP has come a long way since 2006, when they had a budget of about $4,000. With this summer's production of "Much Ado About Nothing," the company is edging closer to $50,000, and projecting audiences as large as 1,000 per night in the bowl-shaped expanse of grass they call home in West Philly.

Among other responsibilities, Burkholder is the business manager, co-artistic director, teaching artist and rain contingency specialist for SCP. But she's also an accomplished Equity actress, and this year she found time to take on Hero in "Much Ado." "It's unlike any other acting experience. One portion of my mind is always pointed toward producer-y things during the process," she says with a laugh. "When people come up with an idea that I just know is going to be expensive or really hard to pack up after the performance, a part of me has trouble remaining an artist."

Under the direction of company favorite Alex Torra, this "Much Ado" promises a '50s-era vibe as it explores postwar undertones in the play. "It's a show about soldiers leaving war behind and coming home to let loose," says Burkholder. "We don't want to impose a concept at the expense of the play, but we're definitely working with the idea of women rebounding from doing men's work, and both sexes having to adjust to their new roles."

Quoted

"We don't want to impose a concept at the expense of the play, but we're definitely working with the idea of women rebounding from doing men's work, and both sexes having to adjust to their new roles."

Kelly Rowland: Stripped down

After years of flashy costumes, the singer has reached a more pared-down place She discusses her changes

Before she went solo, Kelly Rowland spent her career dressed in bling-y costumes designed to keep you entertained — shimmery, mermaid-like dresses with flesh revealing cut-outs or ripped, GI Jane-style army fatigues with camouflage Daisy Dukes. "I've never been afraid to take any risks," she admits over the phone from London, where she's promoting her new album, "Here I Am," and preparing to join the U.K. X-Factor judging panel.

FOR ROWLAND'S STYLE ICONS VISIT WWW.METRO.US/STYLE

"My personal style has grown in a way where I know what works for me. You have to try different things out to get it right," she says of her evolution from her days as one-third of Destiny's Child to now. "Before, I was about what's 'in' right now. But now, I buy to collect pieces that will be with me forever."

The Texan's new wardrobe is much more refined and focused, thanks to her habit of reading Style.com each night ("it relaxes me") and attending runway shows during the collections. She talks about the trends with the confidence of a seasoned market editor: "I love how everything is about opulence and decadence right now. I love how that has come back. And it's great to see the bold colors from spring and summer carrying over into fall," she adds.

Rowland's been wearing Stella McCartney and Chloe the most, lately, and has a long-time obsession with Alexander McQueen. All three are brands with English creative directors — is Britain rubbing off on her? "I love the U.K., period. But I've grown to appreciate the art and creativity of British fashion."

Should you do the Dukan?

- 'The latest reboot of the low-carb dieting philosophy' is making waves
- Kate Middleton and J. Lo are fans

▶ Thinking of starting the Dukan Diet? Get ready to give up pasta until stage three.

STOCKBYTE

When Carolyn Crosier read about Kate Middleton adopting the Dukan plan for her pre-wedding diet, she says she was hooked 100 percent. Then, her colleague Heidi Bergos got on board.

"The fact that Kate Middleton, J. Lo and Giselle all followed Dukan's plan made me want to try it," Bergos says.

Soon, two more colleagues who work in the Charles Hotel's administration offices in Cambridge were eating up the Dukan Diet, so to speak. French nutritionist Pierre Dukan developed the diet, documenting it in his best-selling book, "The Dukan Diet," and the Duchess of Cambridge, Kate, sealed its fate as this year's to-do diet.

"The Dukan Diet is the latest reboot of the low-carb dieting philosophy," says licensed nutritionist Monica Reinagel, author of "Nutrition Diva's Secrets for a Healthy Diet." "The twist is that unlike the Atkins approach, the Dukan Diet has you limit fats as well. While it is usually successful in producing quick weight loss, it has many of the same drawbacks as Atkins."

The disadvantages

"The early phases of the diet are extremely restrictive and nutritionally imbalanced," Reinagel says. "While it offers some advantages like not having to count calories or limit portions (or stop eating until you want to), these sort of extreme programs have a very poor track record for long-term success."

The protein-heavy diet is split into four phases: The Attack, The Cruise, The Consolidation and The Stabilization. In the attack phase, dieters are set up to shed about five pounds very rapidly, in a week or less. The cruise phase implements a diet of certain vegetables, with the goal weight loss being approximately two pounds per week. The consolidation phase reincorporates breads, cheese and starches. And the stabilization phase, designed to be implemented for the rest of the dieter's life, allows dieters to eat almost anything.

Since starting Dukan in April, Bergos lost 15 pounds and Crosier lost 11 pounds. Both gained only a couple back.

"The no alcohol part is the toughest! Everything becomes Du-Can and Du-Can't," jokes Crosier. "It changes what you think about food as far as fuel versus indulgence."

Democrats will indeed pay tax

RE: "DEMS, PUT YOUR MONEY TO WORK": Last I checked, tax forms do not ask for party affiliation. If we raise taxes on the rich, that will include the Obamas, the Kennedys and all the other rich Democrats that are publicly calling to raise their taxes.
JONATHAN BEATRICE, VIA E-MAIL

Like a typical right winger, Joan Bachman believes the national debt should be paid down by people who didn't cause it. I wonder if Ms. Bachman is any relation to the crazy woman in Minnesota. She seems to have the same mindset.
TERRY M. CALLEN, PHILADELPHIA

That's all we seem to hear about today, raising the debt ceiling, taxes, out-of-control federal spending. There is already too much money flowing into Washington, it's a scandal all by itself. What the government needs is less money, not more. Cut spending. Are you listening?!
FRANK ST GEORGE, VIA E-MAIL

Lawmakers are to blame

RE: "MILITARY NOT THE CULPRIT": The incompetence of our intelligence agencies and our military adventurism are to blame for 9/11. Don't blame our troops; blame presidents and impotent Congresses who go to war without declarations and who feel the need to intervene in the internal affairs of foreign nations.
KELLY DONNOE, VIA E-MAIL

Cross words: Moon also rises

The crossword for 18 July has the clue "Moonless period" and demands for the answer "daytime." This is utterly erroneous. As those who look up at the sky now and then are aware, the moon is often visible during the day, and often invisible at night. This is for the simple reason that the Earth spins on its axis every 24 hours while the moon orbits the Earth only once every 28 days. ERIC HAMELL, VIA E-MAIL

Horoscope

♋ Cancer June 21-July 22. Even if you believe your way of doing something is superior to that of others, don't impose your ideas on them. Listen, because you may learn a better way of accomplishing the goal.
♌ Leo July 23-Aug. 22. Unless you take time to study what is involved, you could make a commitment that you'll regret. There might be a lot more to the job than it seems.
♍ Virgo Aug. 23-Sept. 22. Borrowing something of value might be a bad idea, but, if for some reason you must, be extremely careful about how the object is handled.
♎ Libra Sept. 23-Oct. 23. If you're entertaining at your place and a guest brings along an uninvited friend who turns out to be a jerk, graciously ignore it. It could ruin the whole affair if it becomes an issue.
♏ Scorpio Oct. 24-Nov. 22. Should a dirty job be foisted upon you, take it in stride as best as you can. It will only make the situation worse if you air it out in front of others.
♐ Sagittarius Nov. 23-Dec. 21. Circumstances similar to ones that existed in the past when you made a bad mistake might be occurring again. Take your cues from what you learned and handle it differently.
♒ Aquarius Jan. 20-Feb. 19. Should a co-worker who is usually easy to get along with be a little testy, be forgiving, not vindictive. Toss aside all thoughts of getting even.
♓ Pisces Feb. 20-March 20. There is a good chance that an excursion that wasn't intended to be expensive could quickly get out of hand. Don't be a tightwad, but don't be foolishly extravagant either.
♈ Aries March 21-April 19. It isn't enough to have good intentions, you must think things through before simply reacting. Otherwise you could unintentionally do something that others would find offensive.
♉ Taurus April 20-May 20. Keeping proper records could become imperative when you are called on the carpet to explain what and why you did something. If you want to win your case, leave nothing to memory.
♊ Gemini May 21-June 20. Mixing business with pleasure might turn out to be a bad mistake when a member of your group overdoses on food or wine. It won't generate the impression you wanted to make.

Not out of the Woods: Can anyone save golf?

Tour members agree that no Tiger is bad for game ◗ 'Most electrifying' player ever ◗ Better than Nicklaus, Faldo ◗ Cink in town next week

There will never be another Tiger Woods.

With all apologies to recent major winners Darren Clarke and Rory McIlroy, that's just the way it is. Just ask 15-year PGA Tour veteran Stewart Cink.

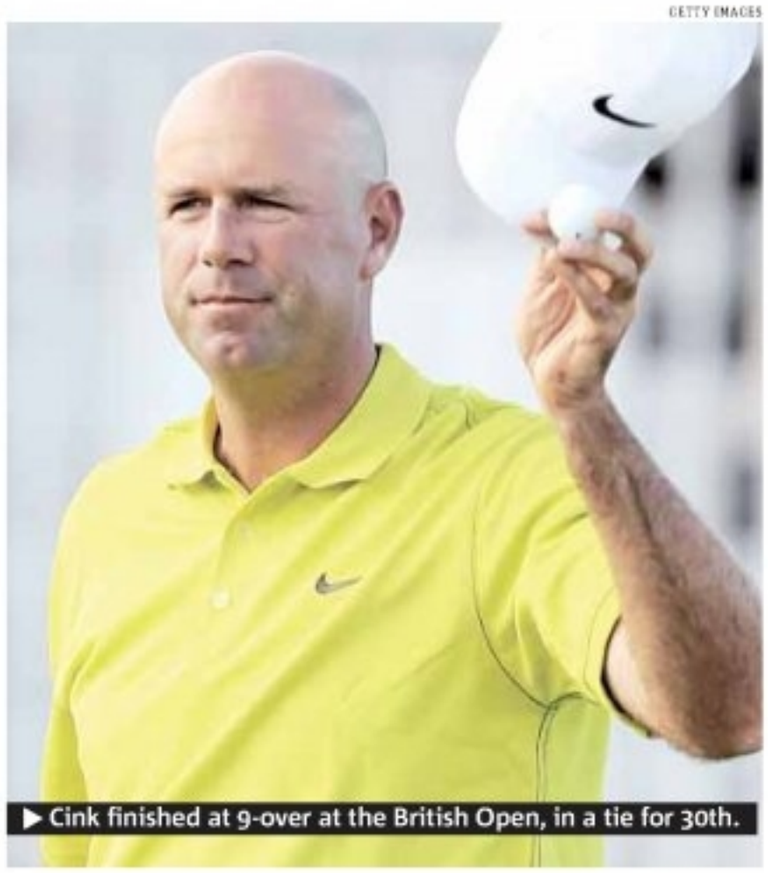
"Guys like Tiger Woods come around, well, once," Cink told Metro. "I saw [Jack] Nicklaus. I saw [Nick] Faldo. Nothing comes close to the way Tiger Woods played at his peak. To be honest, he's probably the most electrifying player to ever play the game."

Woods hasn't played a competitive round of golf since May, and many doubt he'll ever regain his all-world form. In Woods' absence, the game has grown flat-out boring. There have been only four repeat winners in 2011 and none of those included a major.

So, what is wrong with golf these days?

"Tiger is definitely a huge piece of the puzzle," Cink said. "It doesn't matter if Rory McIlory or Phil Mickelson turn it up a notch. The game probably needs him because it's exciting when Tiger Woods is playing great."

GETTY IMAGES



▶ Cink finished at 9-over at the British Open, in a tie for 30th.

American golf has also come to a screeching halt. The last three major winners have all been foreigners. In fact, the last American to win a major was Mickelson, at the 2010 Masters.

"It's cyclical. For the next 20 years, we might see a cycle where Europe dominates, just look at the Ryder Cup, they've been beating us for years," Cink said. "[American dominance] is probably over for a long-term basis, but I don't think it's over for a short-term basis."

MIKE GREGER
mgreger@metro.us

Kudos, Clarke!

- Cink said he was happy to see Clarke win his first major at last weekend's British Open. The two golfers shared the same swing coach, Butch Harmon, from 2002-06.
- "He's really popular and super friendly," said Cink, who won the Open in 2009. "Royal St. George's is the most difficult of all the tournament courses."

Phila. CC hosting golf event Monday

Stewart Cink will be at the Chase Sapphire 2011 Golf Experience Program on Monday at Philadelphia Country Club.

Cardmembers had the opportunity — sorry, the event is sold out — to exchange credit-card reward points for time with Cink. The day starts with a walking clinic, where Cink will go over decision-making and club selection, and ends with a team-based tourney. The last time Cink played in a tournament here was 1995, at Philmont Country Club.

"It's a really cool experience," said Cink. "I'm looking forward to coming back to Philadelphia." METRO

Kolb to Cards rumors pick up steam

Any day now. Any day.

As soon as the NFL lockout officially ends — yes, the two sides could have a deal in place today — the Eagles are expected to hit the ground running. First order of business: trading backup QB Kevin Kolb.

Kolb's top destination is reportedly Arizona. According to reports, the Cardinals are offering cornerback Dominique Rodgers-Cromartie for Kolb.

Kolb appeared on the Dan Patrick Show yesterday, with WIP radio personality Howard Eskin serving as guest host, and seemed to welcome the trade to Arizona.

"I think most people can connect the dots now, I hope," Kolb said. "Arizona would be a great place. I've envisioned myself there and some other places."

When asked if he saw any scenario with Kolb as an Eagle, he said: "I've had a great time there, but it's time for me to move on and do my own thing. I'm the first one to tell you that I had my shot and it didn't work out." METRO

"I've had a great time there, but it's time for me to move on and do my own thing."
KEVIN KOLB ON HIS FUTURE AS A PHILADELPHIA EAGLE

Analysis

STRENGTHS:
Big size, quick feet, proven NFL starter. Considered a ballhawk-type of cornerback. Has 13 interceptions since 2008, including three last season. Selected as 2010 Pro Bowl reserve.

WEAKNESSES:
Criticized for being soft and whiffing on tackles. Known for getting beat on slant routes, bubble screens.

OVERALL:
Upside is there, especially with size: 6-foot-2, 182 lbs. However, he might be better suited for man-coverage than zone, which Eagles run.

OUR TAKE:
Do it. But get Arizona to throw in a third-round pick.

Two storied sides set to face Union

What a week for soccer fans in the Delaware Valley. What a week for the Union players.

Not only will the Union host Everton tonight at PPL Park, but they'll face powerhouse Real Madrid on Saturday (9 p.m.) at Lincoln Financial Field.

Both matches, known as friendlies, will be a good test and the young players will benefit from the experience. While the games don't count in the standings, they will surely help build character.

After all, these are two clubs with so much soccer history.

"It's good competition, like last year," said Union manager Peter Nowak. "I think we're all looking forward to it."

Everton is a five-time FA Cup champion and winners of nine top-flight league titles in England. Founded in 1902. Real Madrid C.F. has won a record nine UEFA Champions Leagues and 31 La Liga titles, 18 Spanish Copa del Rey Cups, eight Spanish Super Cups, two UEFA Cups, one UEFA Supercup and three Intercontinental Cups.

Even the veteran players, such as defender Danny Califf, are stoked about these two matches.

"I think it's great for the fans to come watch a high quality side and it's a good game for us as veterans and the young players to step on the pitch against quality opponents," Califf said. "It's always a good time. There's not any pressure for a result. You just step on the field and compete against a great side."

Everton will be without its main attraction tonight.

- Goalkeeper Tim Howard, the U.S. national team's starter, will not travel with Everton to Philadelphia.
- Union CEO Nick Sakiewicz said the club was caught off-guard by the news. "We understand the need to rest players," he said. "It just would have been nice to know."

Doc feeling better after tiring night

Halladay almost back to normal ◐ Ace left Monday's start due to exhaustion ◐ Not expected to miss time

Roy Halladay exited Monday's game in the fifth inning. The stifling Chicago heat had reduced his uniform to a puddle of sweat.

One day later, the Phillies ace said he was feeling much better. Halladay doesn't expect to miss his next start, which is scheduled for Saturday.

"He got a little dizzy," skipper Charlie Manuel said after the game. "We were a little concerned about dehydration."

Halladay completed most of his normal workout routine yesterday, save some cardio, as the pitcher blamed a combination of intense heat and too much travel for the exhaustion.

trulia real estate search

Philly ranks sixth in most-searched housing markets

- The city placed high on new Realtor.com survey
- Median list prices are down from June 2010

If you're looking at real estate in Philadelphia, you have some serious company.

According to search results released yesterday from Realtor.com, the city was the sixth most-searched market in the country in June, coming in behind frontrunners Chicago, Las Vegas, Detroit, Los Angeles and Phoenix.

The report also evaluated home prices: In Philadelphia, the median list price for homes in June was $239,000 (a 7.18 percent decrease from the same time in 2010) while the national median list price was $189,000 (down a more modest .05 percent from last June).

But while there's competition out there, there's no shortage of properties. According to the Realtor.com survey, there were 26,369 homes on the market in Philly last month.

The top 10

The top 10 most-searched real estate markets in the U.S. in June 2011:

‘Downtown Chic’ on

Cortney Novogratz clues us in on the funky, cool aesthetic she shares with her husband Their new show on HGTV has even more tips for hip looks that won’t break the bank

Last year on Bravo’s “9 by Design,” we watched Cortney Novogratz redecorate and flip multimillion dollar houses with hubby Robert, star in a reality show (you can now catch the trendy family in their new HGTV gig “Home by Novogratz,” Saturday nights at 10) and put out a book, “Downtown Chic,” all while being a mom to seven — yes, seven! — children. The lady is Superwoman. We happily take notes as she teaches us how to attack a flea market like a DWR clearance sale.

Express yourself

“All of the retail shops have the same items, and so for our homes and our wardrobes to be unique, we have to find one-of-a-kind pieces, which the flea market allows us. You’ll really like it if someone comes to your home and they can tell who you are, and your house is a reflection of who you are.”

CATHERINE HALL

▶ Cortney Novogratz

The rules

“I always bring cash. And there is nothing wrong with saying, ‘Oh, I would like this to be cheaper. Can you give me a better deal?’ Most people will negotiate with you — so never ever settle with the initial price.”

Flea marketing with kids

“With my daughters, or any other children for that matter, kids get tired. So [to keep them interested], we started collecting something together. They’ve been collecting paintings of girls and women, which we keep adding to a wall. So that’s fun, and it bought me a little more time to shop while they would look for those paintings.”

Design ideas

▶ Mirrors look cool and add depth to a room.

▶ The Novogratz's collection of flea market portraits.

Novogratz offers simple design ideas to keep in mind while navigating a flea market.

1. Hooks. "You can go to the chain store and buy them, but if you find antique hooks — which you can put on the back of your door, or in the bathroom or hang jewelry from — they're going to be something unique and different."

2. Mirrors. "Buy a bunch of different funky mirrors. Like for one weekend, you may find an old, antique mirror, and for the next weekend, you find a mirror that is from the '50s, and you can create a collage in your apartment. This will also make the room seem a little bigger and deeper. And each time you look in that mirror, you're going to think about which flea market you got it from and the history behind it."

3. Old baskets. "Whether it's a basket that used to hold mail or newspaper, you can reinvent it with some paint and lacquer. Then you can store toilet paper in it — or your towels or your shoes."

ADVERTORIAL

Summer is here and the temperatures are soaring. So is the interest in "23 A Condominium"! This exceptional building, located in the heart of Center City, is a must see for anyone interested in taking that step up to luxury living. And while luxury abounds, generous financing will prove an attractive opportunity to the savvy buyer.

"23" is a seven story building offering lofts, 1, 2, and 3 bedroom homes and two-story penthouses. Each home is the result of top-notch craftsmanship in application of beautiful finishes utilizing the finest fabrics and materials. The result of such attention is elegant design that combines creativity and function. The building also offers a 24-hour doorman, enclosed monitored parking, hardwood floors throughout, bathrooms with marble floors, and countertops. Kitchens are beautifully equipped with Viking appliances and Pennsylvania made cabinetry. Common spaces include a 24 hour concierge staffed lobby, and while it might be furthest from your mind during the sweltering heat, a snow-melt system installed under the sidewalks! It also offers convenience to railways and highways. And to help you beat the heat this summer, relax in the magnificent interior courtyard, resplendent with all the season has to offer; greenery, beautiful floral plantings and the soothing tranquility of a calming waterfall.

A CONDOMINIUM

Unlike other condominiums in the city, creative, in-house financing is unique to "23". When you purchase a condominium at "23" there are no closing costs other than pre-paid items. Transfer tax is waived; low interest rates are available at 3.99%, 4.99% and 5.99%, only 10% down for a 30 year, no PMI, no points, and a full 10-year tax abatement.

Visit us on line www.turchiproperties.com and take a look at our new and improved website. A variety of floor plans, photos and descriptions are available. Read testimonials from our home owners that confirm why "23" was their top choice. While you are there take a look at other Turchi Properties for sale and rent.
